

PRESS STATEMENT

I see the PAP have been patting themselves on the back what a good party they are.

The Prime Minister, BG Lee, wants to attract more attention to Singapore in his enthusiasm for globalisation. Does he not know that Singapore has already attracted enough attention as a unique country. Even the slogan is "Uniquely Singapore".

In what other country are the Ministers provided a nanny to tell them how to behave.

In what other country do Ministers draw exorbitant salaries, far more than they are worth.

In what other country where, besides a nanny, the Prime Minister has to have three other Ministers to help him to discharge his functions.

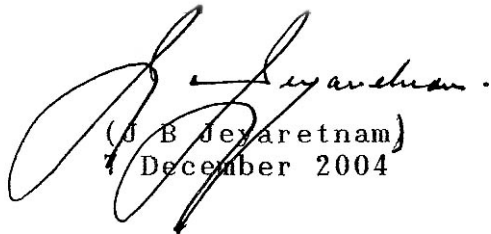

BG Lee wants Singaporeans to take a more active part and not just talk. Does he not realise that his words must sound very hollow to Singaporeans.

The PAP is all talk - with hardly any action to improve the lives of the people.

Doesn't BG Lee know that if he wants to get the participation of the people in the affairs of the country, he has to free them from all the controls under which they live now which prevent them from having a say in the affairs of the country except to join the ranks of the PAP.

If BG Lee will remove all the restraints on the freedom of speech and assembly, he will get what he wants. But he won't because the PAP fear the peoples' participation except in their ranks.

The PAP's philosophy is that one can only contribute if one first accepts the PAP creed. Anybody who does not accept the PAP creed is, in the eyes of the PAP, an enemy of the state created by them and consequently to be hunted down.
